WEBSTER COUNTIAN DISCUSSES LIQUOR

Thinks Attempts at Enforcement While Well to Do Have Drink Is Hurtful to General Welfare—Gives Impressions of Man in Country Who Makes Whiskey for Himself—Claims to Be Prohibitionist and Never Patronizer of Illicit Whiskey Seller or Maker.

Editor Grenada Sentinel:

Your paper bears down heavily on the operators of stills. You are also a "bear cat" after the liquor seller. You are right in this, yet I am more and more reaching the conclusion that we are failing to see but one side of this all important liquor question.

I am a prohibitionist; I believe in it, but in saying this I do not want to appear under false colors; I do not mean that I would not appreciate at times even now a drink of good whiskey. Used reasonably and rightly, whiskey often serves a good purpose. I know it is good in sickness of certain kinds. And what I say as to myself I believe is correct as to most men—fully 85 per cent of them any way. Talk about the matters as we may, deep down in the system of most men there is an underlying belief that the government has no business trying to stop absolutely a good citizen from buying whiskey or anything else he wants. I never patronized moonshiners; I have never aided their business in any form and I fully recognize that they are a menace to the social welfare and to the peace of our communities.

We have prohibition but it is not prohibiting. Talk about it until we are black in the face and yet we know whiskey is being sold; we know it is being made, and made in many instances not far from our own homes.

There is an idea prevalent in many places away from the towns that you people in the towns, particularly those with money, or who are wealthy, have whiskey, all you want. We read of men in high places, lawyers, legislators, bankers and hundreds of others having liquor.

Now some well meaning men back in the country are saying about this: "Yes, the rich are having all the liquor they want but we cannot buy it, yet when we take our own corn and undertake to make some for ourselves and maybe for our neighbors, we are arrested and jailed and often sent to the pen. This is not fair. It is lop-sided law observance and law enforcement".

Now this idea is abroad to some extent in many rural sections. And I confess that there is some justification for it. It may not be right, yet we must deal with it. What to do about prohibition I am not wise enough to say, but I do say according to the lights before me, it will never be enforced the way they have it now. You know that besides the making and selling of whiskey now, there are other things following right along in the trail and that is corrupt officials, the breaking of many moral laws and the degredation of the youth—at least this is what many are saying who are where they can see things as they are.

The thing is, as I see it, to try something else. By this I do not mean to compromise with the law violator and with evil. But we are getting nowhere. I do not believe that in these parts there is nearly so much whiskey made as was just a few years back and that there is not nearly so much being drunk, as before we had prohibition, but what is being made and being drunk will kill a pole cat, and there is more drunkenness where it will hurt than ever before. From what little I read and from what those tell me who travel there is more whiskey in the cities than ever before and more crime as a result of whiskey.

But the thing I want to especially get before you is the attitude of the little farmer who has a small still and who is jerked up and tried by jurors sometimes and prosecuted by officers sometimes who drink themselves when these little farmers think they know that there are gallons in the homes of many within a block or mile of our court houses. Such things are making the moonshiner a worse man.

I submit these rambling thoughts and ask you to correct where needed, and if you think them worthy of space in your paper, would be glad you would publish them. My appeal is to our wiser ones to change the battle line and to try some other plan, keeping the idea well in mind that most men and some mighty good women think they are entitled to a drink at times.

Yours respectfully,
C. J. WORTHY.

Legislative Happenings and Deadlock Discussed by Representative Provine

Thinks Governor Wholly Responsible and Cites What He Thinks Proves His Belief—Governor Insisted on Appointing High Officials, Causing Split—Commends Governor for Asking Investigation of Office of Attorney General and Official Acts of Cecil Inman, Former Tax Commission Chairman—Division of Opinion about Amount of Deficit of Whitfield-Murphree Administration but States Friends Admit $600,000 and Says This Does Not Take in Account over Six Hundred Thousand Dollars Mulcted Out of Railroads in Secret Caucus by Knox and Inman—Thinks Gov. Bilbo Has Lost Grip Even on Senate Where Many of His Former Friends Deserted Him When He Appeared So Arbitrary—Predicts Harmony at January Meet.

Hon. J. N. Provine, member of the lower house of the Mississippi legislature from Grenada county, makes the following public statement as to the recent extraordinary session of the legislature, while at the same time mentioning some of the things which transpired in the two previous sessions of this legislature.

"We were called together to pass a hardsurfaced road law, and in the call, the Governor stated that unless something was done toward permanent highway legislation, the state would lose its pro rata of federal road funds. This statement was unquestionably made with the view of getting the ear of the folk back home in the hope that 'the people' might get the idea that the legislature, and the lower house especially, had become so callous and indifferent that it allowed the taxpayers of the state to lose this money. The lower house sent a bill taking care of the federal highway funds situation to the senate shortly after last assembling and it lay there until adjournment hour when it was passed by that body, but the Governor vetoed it and in his veto, stated that the state would not lose federal road money if he did not sign it, a postion directly at variance with what he announced in his call for the last extraordinary session. Another instance of Bilbo consistency.

"The house had before it Judge Boykin, of the federal good roads bureau at Washington, when the house was framing the bill to meet the requirements to get federal funds. He helped frame the bill and he stated it met every requirement of the federal road department. The bill was passed without a dissenting vote.

"The session just ended could have passed a road bill within two weeks after assembling if the Governor had consented to allow the people to elect the highway commissioners. The lower house stood unalterably opposed to the men who would handle millions of dollars of public money being answerable only to one man and that man the Governor. Why the Governor seemed to lose confidence in the ability of the people to elect, is known only to him. A vast majority of the lower house thought that the Governor just wanted to control the money appropriated for road building. After weeks of see-sawing between the two bodies, the house passed the Wright road bill which came over from the senate and which Governor Bilbo vetoed at the last minute. A majority of the senate, which had on nearly all occasions been voting with the Governor, deserted him or became disgusted with him, and voted for the Wright road bill. It was not what the house wanted; it was not what anybody really wanted; it was a compromise measure and would have started permanent road work, and could, and would have I believe, been amended at the regular session next winter. The Governor had fairly champed his bits about road legislation but when it was put up to him, because he did not have enough power in the proposed law, he vetoed the bill. Another instance of Bilbo consistency.

"The Governor never did submit

ADDS NEW DEPARTMENT

The Leader Enters Ladies' Ready-to-Wear Business.

The attention of readers of The Sentinel, especially the ladies, is called to the announcement of The Leader, to be found on page 5 of this issue. This store, which has long catered to the wants of the men of this territory and which for years has carried splendid lines of ladies' shoes, hose and underwear, is telling the public that it is entering the ladies' ready-to-wear department and is making its bow to the ladies.

The interior of The Leader's handsome store has been remodeled to take care of the new department and a wonderful array of dresses, coats and ensembles, purchased for the store by its resident buyer in New York, awaits the approval of the ladies of this section.

The new department is to be in charge of Mrs. J. D. Dyre. Assisting her will be Miss Mary Jeffreys and Mrs. R. C. Trusty. These three ladies are too well known to need any further introduction at the hands of this paper. That the ready-to-wear department will be in capable hands goes without saying.

The Sentinel feels sure that the venture of The Leaddr into this, to it, new field will meet with the approval of the public generally.

JOE G. ACEE ACCEPTS POST IN CAMBRIDGE, MD. SCHOOL

The Philadelphia (Pa.) Evening Bulletin of Sept. 5 carried the photograph of Joe G. Acee, Grenada young man, together with a very flattering write-up concerning his acceptance of the post of associate instructor in science and director of athletics in the Cambridge, Md. high school. Mr. Acee, who is a graduate of Mississippi College, was stationed during the summer months in Cambridge doing work for the U. S. Department of Agriculture. A new high school building has just been completed there and Mr. Acee assumed his duties when school opened Sept. 9th.

His many Grenada friends feel that he will most capably measure up to the responsibilitiees of his position.

TEACHERS ON PROGRAM

Misses Anita Poe Gann and Lorraine Lyon, of the city schools faculty, most delightfully entertained the Grenada Rotary Club at its noon luncheon Tuesday. Miss Gann sang a number of selections to piano accompaniments by Miss Lyon and she also read two numbers.

Messrs. Jeff Cunningham and John T. Salmon, who were guests at the meeting, expressed their pleasure at being present.

The club, by a small majority, voted in favor of Memphis over Greenville as the place for holding the next district convention.

W. T. BURNS BURIED IN GRENADA, SUNDAY

All that was mortal of W. T. Burns was brought to Grenada Sunday, last, from his home in Memphis and laid to rest in Odd Fellows cemetery after appropriate religious services. He was past the three score and ten mark. For many years Mr. Burns was a resident of Grenada and had been connected with different mercantile enterprises here. His last business connection in the town was with the Grenada Grocery Co. Some fifteen years ago he moved to Memphis. He was for many years a faithful adherent of the Baptist church, and was an honest, upright citizen. To the sorrowing The Sentinel tenders condolence.

LEGION ELECTS DELEGATES

At a meeting last Friday night, the Grenada post of The American Legion elected D. D. Crawford, of Grenada, and Gaston Williams, of Graysport, as delegates to represent the post at the national convention to be held in Louisville, Ky., Sept. 30-Oct. 2. T. E. Neely and C. E. Wriggins were named as alternates. The state department, it is understood, will bear all or a part of the expenses of the two delegates from the local post.

The members at the Friday meeting discussed the carnival to be held here the week of Oct. 28 under the auspices of the post. The post hopes to realize a nice sum for its treasury from the carnival.

The post plans to have a representative of the state department here at an early date to discuss with Grenada county ex-service men disability claims and other matters in which they are interested.

SCHOOLS BEGIN SESSION WITH 872 ENROLLMENT

Grenada City Schools opened Monday morning with 872 pupils registered, classified, supplied with books, and ready and anxious to go. Buildings had all been thoroughly cleaned and many repairs had been made and new equipment provided where needed.

The study hall system for the 7th and 8th grade pupils is a new feature that will mean increased efficiency and convenience. Miss Anita Poe Gann, the teacher of public school music and physical training for girls, has entered into her work with enthusiasm. The piano teachers have full classes. The new teachers are women of successful experience and are taking hold of their work in a manner most pleasing. About thirty boys are taking football training under coach J. C. Hathorn and the popular coach of Grenada High expects to have a strong football team.

THOMAS ONE OF DIRECTORS

Picture Adorned Jackson Newspapers.

The pictures of four handsome men, directors of a newly organized life insurance company, the Standard, adorned the Jackson newspapers last Sunday and one of the four was Grenada's own J. T. Thomas who was not eclipsed in looks by any of the other three. Neither was Mr. Thomas eclipsed in business standing and as one of Mississippi's outstanding business leaders by any of the other three. Honors are not new things for Mr. Thomas, yet as the days pass and as time unerringly, as it always does, gives men their just places in the estimation of their fellows, it is more and more a matter of pride to Grenada that the services of her leading citizen are so much demanded by other large business concerns as well as in many humanitarian efforts.

Farm Body Officers Hold Meet Tuesday

Affairs of Farm Development Association Reviewed Showing Milk Sales Have Increased from Few Hundred Dollars to Forty-eight Thousand Dollars Annually. Demand for 34 Cows Now. Thomas Paying Out of Own Pocket Salary of Field Man. Important Matter Up to Judgment and Cooperation of Grenada Business Men.

The monthly meeting of the officers of the Grenada Farm Development Association was had Tuesday. The Sentinel wonders if the business men of Grenada have put themselves to the trouble to try to acquaint themselves with what has been done through this association by developing the dairying interests of this trade territory? It appears to be so very difficult to get busy men in this day to post themselves on anything besides their very own immediate business, that many say it is discouraging. This paper wonders if the business men of Grenada have thought it worth while to know what the monthly sales of milk in the county are and what these milk tickets amount to in the business life of Grenada? The Sentinel also wonders if the business men of Grenada want the Farm Development Association to continue, or are they willing for it to die because of the lack of the proper interest and encouragement upon their part? If within two years the dairying business brings the sale of milk in the county from practically nothing at all to $48,000 for the past year, what is possible within the next two years? Many dairy cows have been sold; 34 more are wanted right today, but this takes money. It takes money to employ a man to supervise this work. The Sentinel likewise wonders if the business men of Grenada know that one man, J. T. Thomas, is now paying out of his own purse, the monthly salary of the supervisor of this work, but of course he will not continue to do this very much longer and should not be expected to do so. The Farm Development Association is an organization that means a great deal to the prosperity and business betterment of the farmers of this trade territory. Thee is much hay saved and there will be an abundance of corn, hence it does seem that everything is favorable to greatly increasing the interest in dairying in this section.

GROUP MEETINGS CALLED

A number of group meetings have been announced for the Grenada District of the Methodist Church by the presiding elder, the Rev. E. H. Cunningham.

The Grenada District Pastors' Association and Conference will convene in the First Methodist Church here, Monday, Sept. 23, at noon. Following noon luncheon there will be a round table conference led by Fred T. Barnett, associate general secretary of the board of lay activities, in which this distinguished layman will be assisted by the district lay leader, Harmon Boswell. The conference will be informal and consist of questions and answers, with the pastor and one or more laymen from each of the 24 pastoral charges of the district, participating.

Tuesday, Sept. 24 there will be quarterly conference and a group rally of several charges on the Winona circuit at New Hope, with Mr. Barnett conducting a stewardship conference.

Mr. Barnett, on invitation of the Business Men's Bible Class and the pastor of Grenada, will speak two or three evenings at the Methodist Church beginning Sunday, Sept. 22. Other speaking places and lay meetings will be held during the following week at other places in the district under direction of the presiding elder.

Each pastor is requested to bring one or more of his laymen to the district meeting at Grenada Sept. 23.

WEALTH OF GOOD MATERIAL TO APPEAR IN FAIR AND PROGRESS EDITION.

Many factors are combining to forecast a successful result of the publication of The Sentinel's Fair & Progress Edition. Its usefulness as a publicity medium is becoming more acknowledged as the date of issue draws nearer.

A publicity can be useful, lasting and productive of good results only when it is founded on undisputed facts. It can be powerful only when it presents those facts of a substantial nature, unquestionable, reliable, which a community can boast of. It can be attractive and inviting only when those facts are offered through the pens of those who know their subjects. Combining all these features it becomes a vital power for good.

The publicity which will be broadcast through the columns of The Fair & Progress Edition to the country at large will combine all these high-powered points. The industries of this section will be treated of in detail, the mercantile enterprises will be pictured interestingly. There will be descriptions of its transportation facilities, of its good roads and programs of future developments.

There will be discussions of its natural facilities for new enterprises, of its financial soundness, of its business and professional forums, and to complete the picture of a delightful community, there will be histories and descriptions of its churches and schools, its governmental bodies and last, but not least, of those conditions which hold beckoning fingers of opportunity to those who may be seeking new homes and new locations for industrial endeavor.

Much of this material will come from the pens of contributors who have an intimate knowledge of their subjects and who, by virtue of the names they bear, will give the stamp of undeniable authority upon the subjects about which they write.

Cooperation on the part of local residents in this respect has reached a most gratifying degree. It indicates on the part of Grenada's citizens a public spirit of the highest type, a general interest in the welfare of the community which can be productive of none but the greatest and most lasting results.

Viewing the structure of The Fair & Progress Edition from these outlines, The Sentinel believes that it will present to the reading public on the day of its issue an array of material which will contain every element of soundness, every stamp of reliability, the highest type of publicity ever given to the Grenada section of Mississippi.

LITTLE GIRL DIES

Emily, seven-year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Litten, passed away Monday, Sept. 9, at 12:30 a. m. after an illness of nearly three weeks. Funeral services were conducted from the family residence that afternoon by Rev. E. R. Henderson, pastor of the Central Baptist Church, after which interment was in Woodlawn Memorial Park.

Emily was an exceedingly bright and attractive child. She was winsome in manner and her passing leaves a vacancy in that home and a sorrow that the years can never erase.

Her distressed loved ones may console themselves that little Emily is awaiting them on that other shore where there is no sickness, no sorrow, no pain, no death.

The Sentinel tenders its deepest sympathy.

COLLEGE OPENS SEPT. 19th

Dr. J. R. Countiss, president of Grenada College, announces the formal opening for Thursday, Sept. 19th, at 10:00 a. m. with a public program of worship, music, expression and an address in the Wilkinson auditorium. All freshmen have been notified to report at 9:30 a. m., on Tuesday, Sept. 17th. Two days have been set apart in a comprehensive program for their instruction as to college life and regulations, for intelligence tests, and for arranging their schedules. Committees have been appointed to confer with them as to their studies, as well as to their life plans and purposes. Other students are expected to report for duty on Wednesday, Sept. 18th, to arange schedules for classes and to assist in making the freshmen feel at home. Extra charges will be made for late registrations.

Extensive improvements have been made in the buildings, the laboratory having been doubled in size, the main dormitory redecorated, and a professor's cottage built. The home economics quarters have been entirely overhauled, and the building given a new coat of paint.

The faculty list is as follows: J. R. Countiss, D. D., president; Corinne Laney, A. M., Dean and Latin; Susie P. Brown, A. M., French; Catherine Johnston, A. M., Spanish; Margaret Harris, A. M., Mathematics; Kathryn Daugherty, A. B., Chemistry and Biology; Jennie Lee Epps, Ph. D., English; F. H. Bostian, A. M., History; Virginia Thomas, A. M., Bible and Christian Education; D. P. Wilson, A. M., Psychology and Education; Lillian McGrath, B. S., Hygiene and Physical Education; Sophie Payne Alston, A. M., Home Economics; Iona May Liller, B. M., Voice; Bessie Ferguson, B. M., Piano; E. Faye Griffeth, Art and Designing; Ruth G. Bale, Expression and Spoken English.

OFFERS ARRAY OF VALUES

Revell Furniture Co. Has Wealth of Furniture Bargains.

In The Sentinel this week page seven is devoted to a description of an array of values offered at this time by Revell Furniture Co. and the page contains many items that should appeal to the discriminating shopper. Two solid carloads of fine furniture have just been received by this progressive concern and it is placing unbelievably low prices on this merchandise in order to move it quickly.

The proprietor, Mr. T. B. Revell, is known as a thoroughly wide awake merchant, he is a careful buyer and, during his business career in Grenada, has made connections that enable him him to buy from the manufacturers at such figures that allow him to pass on to his customers some very remarkable values in furniture.

Many articles are pictured and described in Revell's ad. If you don't see there just what you want, The Sentinel does not hesitate to say that it is sure you may find it in Revell's immense stock and at a price to please you.

ACCEPTS PLACE WITH STATE CHAIN STORE ORGANIZATION

Mr. C. A. Summerlin expects to leave this week for Georgia where he will represent Jitney-Jungle, Inc. He will have charge of the sale of the organization's franchises in parts of the Cracker State.

Jitney-Jungle, Inc., owned by McCarty-Holman Co., of Jackson, Miss., is making rapid progress, especially in the southland, in opening new stores and Mr. Summerlin is fortunate in making a connection with such an organization. It, too, is equally fortunate in securing his services.

Mr. Summerlin has made his home in Grenada for several years and he has made a host of friends here who will regret that he will not be able to get home as often as formerly. His family, for the present at least, will continue to reside here.

OPEN AIR COMIC OPERETTA BENEFIT BUILDING FUND

Announcement is made in this issue of The Sentinel of a romantic comic operetta to be staged in the Masonic Temple Open Air Theatre on next Friday evening, Sept. 20, the proceeds of which are to go to the Temple's building fund.

Some of the best local talent available make up the cast and a most interesting entertainment is promised by those sponsoring the event. The lawn opposite the temple will accommodate 300 or more spectators and a large crowd is expected to witness the presentation.

OCT. 24 SET FOR "HOMECOMING DAY"

Fair Association Sets Date to Welcome All Former Grenada Countians—Days Gone By and Old Scenes to Be Rehearsed—Committee Is Named to Get in Touch with Former Citizens—All Who Have Friends and Relatives Elsewhere Asked to See Committee.

The management of the North Mississippi Fair Association has named Thursday, October 24, of fair week, as "Home Coming Day", a day when all men and women born in Grenada or Grenada county or who ever made their home here and who are now scattered to the four corners of this country are urged to come back to the old vine and fig tree and there nestle at least for one day in the shadows of the past and in the memories of associations that are dearer than words can express and that can but serve as manna to every right thinking soul.

There are but few towns the size of Grenada that have so many sons and daughters in other communities and in other states. Even just casual thinking brings to the mind of almost any one a hundred or more who once claimed Grenada or Grenada county as home. One of the most reassuring things about American life is the high value even the careless minded places upon "Home, Sweet Home". Truly did the poet speak wisely when he wrote "there is no place like home". It will be joyous to have the wanderers back. It will likewise be a happy day for every returning son and daughter. Few, if any, of the wanderers went as the prodigal son went, yet many many times the hearts of many of them have yearned to return to the home of their fathers.

Realizing this, the fair management has named the above date as a day when the sons and daughters are especially urged to come back "home", and to bring their families with them. The day should be a feast of soul. J. H. Bull and O. F. Lawrence have been named as a committee to handle "Home Coming Day". Efforts will be made to communicate with every former Grenadian and it is expected that the invitation will be made so urgent and so appealing that but few indeed will not make every effort to return to the "old town", and talk over things that fired their youth and that have meant so much to them in these passing years.

The committee named would be glad to get a list of friends and kinspeople from any and everybody in the county who know the whereabouts of relatives or any former Grenada county citizen. Make it a point to get in touch with either Mr. Bull or Mr. Lawrence.

NEW BUILDING HOUSES TIRE, BATTERY DEP'T

In this issue of The Sentinel at the top of page 2 the Crown Service Station is announcing the addition of a new department to its business. The new department, which is housed in a handsome building just completed, is its tire and battery station. Equipped with the latest devices to give complete tire and battery service, the Crown Service Station is now prepared to meet every need of the motorist.

In addition to the above, the station is announcing that it is representative for the Curtiss Flying Service of Memphis and those interested in the various features of aviation are invited to get in touch with it. Mr. D. S. Mead, pilot and sales representative for the organization, expects to come to Grenada regularly every two weeks and he will be glad to discuss the details of the service his company offers with anyone interested.

PAUL GERARD TO MANAGE IMPERIAL MOTOR COMPANY

In this issue of The Sentinel announcement is made that Paul Gerard is now manager of the Imperial Motor Co., local Buick dealers. Paul Gerard was born and reared in Grenada and needs no introduction to the people of this section. He is one of Grenada's finest young men and by training and experience he is fully prepared to handle every detail of the business with which he is now associated. For the past several years Mr. Gerard has managed the Buick agency in Cleveland and he still retains his interest in that business.

Mr. W. H. Doyle and Mr. Coleman Berry will be associated with Mr. Gerard in the conduct of the Imperial Motor Co.

SUCCESS SEEMS ASSURED.

The close of the present week will mark the fourth week during which The Sentinel has been engaged in the preparation of its Fair & Progress Edition. Much has been accomplished during this period in the accumulation of material. Much more remains to be accomplished. A publication of the type and character which The Sentinel hopes to make of the Fair & Progress Edition requires much though and painstaking work and The Sentinel is bending every effort toward this end.

The Sentinel believes, in fact, that the object toward which it is striving in the presentation of this publication will be of the utmost usefulness to the community. It believes that the matter to be printed in its columns must be of the highest type and from sources which in themselves testify to its reliability. Presenting as it will the financial soundness, the industrial opportunities and the material resources which exist in our midst, it is the intention of The Sentinel to make this printed matter inspire the confidence of its readers through the soundness of its source.

In the gathering of this material The Sentinel has been supported in a manner which is indicating that our citizens believe in their community. Public spirit is one of the strongest factors in the progress of any city and to the extent to which this spirit is displayed will that progress become apparent.

Viewed from what has already been accomplished in the preparation of The Fair & Progress Edition the forecast of its final results seems to be most promising. The creation of the idea of this publication was based upon a motive to broaden the usefulness and expand our community and in the presentation of The Fair & Progress Edition The Sentinel is bending every effort to accomplish this result.

ONE-EYED AUTOS.

Motorists of this city and section seem utterly oblivious of the fact that a state law and city ordinance forbid the running of an automobile at night with only one headlight burning. So common is this practice in Hattiesburg that it is difficult to drive ten blocks on one of these summer evenings without seeing from one to five motor cars minus one headlight.

Nothing makes a collision easier than a failure to obey this statute, which was placed on the books not to worry citizens but for the general protection of all who use our public thoroughfares. A light bulb costs only a few cents. A damage suit is likely to cost the offending party several thousands of dollars. We would respectfully remind the operators of motor trucks, as well as the owners of automobiles, that driving a car with one light is the strongest kind of evidence of negligence and would go a long way toward putting the burden upon the offending motorist in case of a collision.

Since Hattiesburg's police force shows no inclination whatever to enforce this reasonable regulation, motorists themselves should give this matter attention for the mutual protection of all who use our streets. Perhaps some day city officials will insist upon the observance of this and other traffic laws, a breach of which endangers life and limb each and every day.

Twenty-seven thousand persons were killed in automobile accidents last year. Collisions on Hattiesburg streets are growing in number. Hospital records tell a sad story of broken bones, painful cuts and bruises, and unnecessary bills for medical attention. The motorist who drives with one light or with loose brakes is a potential criminal and in case of a fatal accident is likely to find himself confronted with a charge of manslaughter.—Hattiesburg American.

One can drive but a few miles at night on the highways of this section without meeting motor vehicles with but one light. It is a most common thing to see motor trucks with no number tag on the rear end—and there is a more flagrant disregard of traffic laws by many truck drivers than anything else. Many motor truck drivers are loath to give an automobile passing room on the road. Yes, we have a law—but.

PRESIDENT HOOVER HIT THE BULL'S EYE.

President Hoover hit the bull's eye when he expressed to the public his determination to look well into the methods which the action of W. B. Shearer reveals as to the efforts of the ship building corporations of the United States to defeat means being used by this country to bring about naval disarmament. He has put his finger on the pulse that has a great deal to do with bringing about wars—that of certain lines of big business who fight their battles in palatial offices on cushioned chairs; they do not give a Tinker's dam about the anguish of soul that war brings to thousands of homes just so they get the coin of the realm.

All is quiet in Jackson on the Pearl.

INVESTIGATIONS AND INVESTIGATIONS.

Appearances indicate that there are several in and around Jackson who want to share in the honors that may come from investigating the records of state officers. Ordinarily that would be a worthy ambition. Let the work proceed from Alpha to Omega. Whoever has handled any public money let it be shown how and for what it was used. Put the coulter deep.

WALKER WOOD HAS CLEAN SLATE.

The Sentinel guarantees that Walker Wood's records as secretary of state are clean, intimations from any source whatever to the contrary notwithstanding.

The Sentinel repeatedly stated prior to the convening of the extraordinary session of the legislature that the one mountain in the way of highway legislation was that of how the commissioners should be chosen and, further, if it be conceded that they be elected by the people a road bill could be passed quickly.

July term, 1928, of the Circuit Court of Grenada County he was convicted of possessing a still and sentenced to serve eighteen months in the state penitentiary; that he has served ten months of this sentence: that for the same offense he was convicted in the District Court of the United States, and served in full the sentence of that court.

Petitioner now prays a pardon at the hands of the Governor of the State and in support of his petition states: That petitioner has been adequately and sufficiently punished for the offense charged against him. Petitioner further states that he is the father of four infant children who are dependent solely upon his labor for a livelihood, and that if he is again committed to serve the remainder of his sentence these children will suffer want and become a charge upon the public.

Therefore upon consideration of the above premises, petitioner respectfully makes this application for executive clemency.

Few Golf Balls Imported

While there is no report that shows the total number of golf balls used in the United States, or the number imported, it is estimated that not more than one-sixth of the balls in use are imported.

Normal human blood is too thick to be drawn through the mosquito's small piercing tube. They must first inject a thinning fluid. In that way disease germs are set afloat in the blood stream—bacteria of burning fever and crippling disease. There is also the danger of streptococcic infection (blood posioning) from scratching the bite. Mosquitoes must be killed. Health authorities advocate FLY-TOX. Simple instructions on each bottle (blue label) for killing ALL household insects. INSIST on FLY-TOX. FLY-TOX has a perfume-like fragrance. It was developed at Mellon Institute of Industrial Research by Rex Research Fellowship. Safe, stainless, fragrant, sure.—Adv.

PETITION FOR PARDON

To His Excellency, The Governor of the State of Mississippi.

Your petitioner, Fred Sission, respectfully represents: that at the July Term, 1928, of the Circuit Court of Grenada County he was convicted of possessing a still and sentenced to serve eighteen months in the State Penitentiary; that he has served ten months of this sentence; that for the same offense he was convicted in the District Court of the United States, and served in full the sentence of that court.

Petitioner now prays a pardon at the hands of the Governor of the state and in support of his petition states: That petitioner has been adequately and sufficiently punished for the offensee charged against him. That petitioner is a negro of only ordinary intelligence, and not mentally capable of understanding the full gravity of the offense which he committed.

Petitioner further states that he is the father of several infant children who are dependent upon him for a living and who will suffer want if he is again committed to serve the remainder of his sentence.

Therefore petitioner makes this application for executive clemency.

THE New BUICK

New Controlled Servo Enclosed brakes

unrivalled for smooth, sure, silent operation in any weather . . .

To Buick, pioneer of four-wheel brakes, now falls the distinction of another major achievement in this same vital field: the development and introduction of Buick Controlled Servo Enclosed Brakes—the most effective four-wheel braking system ever devised for any automobile!

Buick's new brakes are of the highly efficient internal-expanding type. They are fully enclosed—fully protected against dust, dirt and water—and thus assure maximum braking effectiveness under all weather conditions.

They represent the highest development of the self-energizing principle, which makes the car's own motion provide part of the braking effort. They reveal unmatched responsiveness to the slightest pedal pressure. And they are so perfectly controlled that "grabbing" is entirely unknown! When you apply these brakes, you obtain the most positive, as well as the smoothest and most silent action you have ever experienced in any automobile!

Drive the new Buick! Test not only its matchless new brakes but its brilliant all-round performance, riding comfort and driving ease—all of which combine to establish the new Buick as the greatest value ever offered in the fine car field!

WHEN BETTER AUTOMOBILES ARE BUILT...BUICK WILL BUILD THEM

Drive America's finest medium-priced automobile and learn what a difference there is

Nowhere is the impressive superiority of today's Oakland All-American Six more clearly revealed than in its remarkable performance.

Oakland's engine has, among other features, the large piston displacement necessary in developing high power at the moderate engine speed essential to long life—the Harmonic Balancer to neutralize torsional vibration in the crankshaft—rubber "biscuit" mountings to insulate it from the frame and make it incomparably smooth and free from vibration.

Drive this car—and learn what a difference these features make. We will prove to your complete satisfaction that today's Oakland is America's finest medium-priced automobile.

Why Oakland is unrivaled in performance at its price

The following facts were obtained from a comparison of the Oakland All-American Six with 20 other medium-priced automobiles. All told, 878 individual comparisons were made. Of these Oakland proved to be distinctly superior in 451 or 51.37 per cent. The 20 cars combined were at best equal to Oakland on 382 or 43.50 per cent. And 13 of the 20 were higher-priced than Oakland!

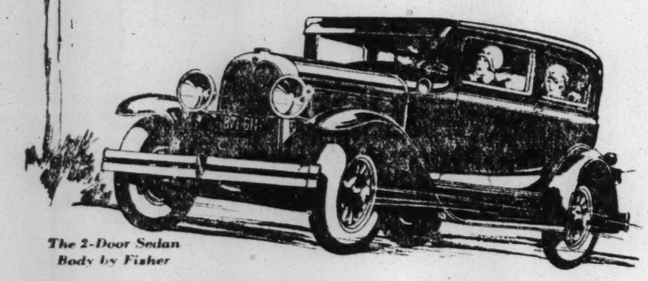
PISTON DISPLACEMENT
Oakland's 228-cubic-inch piston displacement is greater than 12 of the 20 cars in its price field. Of the 8 remaining cars, 7 are much higher-priced than Oakland.

G-M-R CYLINDER HEAD
Only Oakland and one other car in the field use the G-M-R cylinder head. Sixteen have no type of non-detonating cylinder head whatsoever, although 11 of the 16 are more expensive to buy than Oakland.

RUBBER ENGINE MOUNTING
Only Oakland in the entire field employs rubber "biscuit" insulators. While others claim rubber mountings, none offers such resilience and permanent freedom from vibration as Oakland.

HARMONIC BALANCER
Only Oakland and one other car in the field have the Harmonic Balancer. Of 13 cars using some other device, 11 are higher-priced than Oakland. Oakland's crankshaft is fully counterweighted. The crankshafts in nine higher-priced cars are not counterweighted at all.

CRANKCASE VENTILATION
While most cars in the field have crankcase ventilation, only Oakland and one other, according to available information, have any method for cleaning the air. Six have not, although three of the six are higher-priced than Oakland.



The 2-Door Sedan Body by Fisher

Consider the delivered price as well as the list (f. o. b.) price when comparing automobile values . . . Oakland-Pontiac delivered prices include only authorized charges for freight and delivery and the charge for any additional accessories or financing desired.

IMPROVED UNIFORM INTERNATIONAL

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Dean, Moody Bible Institute of Chicago
(©, 1929, Western Newspaper Union.)

Lesson for September 15

TEACHING THE LAW OF GOD

GOLDEN TEXT—The entrance of thy words giveth light.
LESSON TEXT—Nehemiah 8:1-18.
PRIMARY TOPIC—Studying God's Word.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Studying God's Word.
INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—Finding Joy in God's Word.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Call for Trained Teachers.

This lesson is a fine illustration of the rightful place of God's Word in the life of a nation. The only certain cure for national ills is a return to God and obedience to His Word.

I. The Word of God Being Read (vv. 1-3).

1. The eager assembly (v. 1).

The people gathered themselves together and requested Ezra to bring the book of the law.

2. A representative assembly (v. 2).

It was made up of men, women and children. The men did not leave the spiritual affairs to the women, neither were the children left at home. The Spirit of God can speak through God's Word to the whole family sitting in the pew.

The lesson lasted for five or six hours, from morning until midday.

II. The People's Attitude Toward God's Word (vv. 4-6).

1. Due reverence shown (vv. 4, 5).

When Ezra opened the law, all the people stood up out of respect for God's Word.

2. They joined heartily in the prayer (v. 6).

As Ezra led them in prayer, they joined heartily in saying "Amen, Amen," bowing their faces to the ground.

III. God's Word Being Interpreted (vv. 7, 8).

The attitude of the people toward God's Word largely depends upon the minister. Proper dignity and solemnity should be manifested by the minister when reading the Holy Scriptures.

1. He stood up where the people could see him (v. 5).
2. He read distinctly (v. 8).
3. He caused the people to understand the reading (v. 8).

IV. The Effect of Applying God's Word to the Life of the People (vv. 9-18).

1. Conviction of sin (v. 9).

The Word of God is quick and powerful (Heb. 4:12). It brings conviction of sin (Acts 2:37). The divine method of convicting men of sin is to have God's Word applied by the Holy Ghost.

2. Weeping turned into joy (vv. 10-12).

When sins have been perceived and confessed, there is forgiveness. God desires forgiven sinners to enter into the joy of forgiveness. Continued mourning will not atone for sins that are past, unfits one for present tasks, and dishonors a pardoning God. Besides, joy has a salutary effect on one's entire being. "The joy of the Lord is your strength" (v. 10).

3. Blessings were shared with others (vv. 10-12).

True joy manifests itself in giving to others; pure religion goes out to minister to the poor (Jas. 1:27).

4. The people obeyed (vv. 13:18).

From the reading of the Scriptures, they found that the Feast of Tabernacles had long been neglected. They proceeded to keep this sacred feast in a way that had not been observed since the days of Joshua (v. 17). In the keeping of this feast they dwelt in booths, thus typifying their pilgrim character and bringing to remembrance the days of their wilderness journey.

V. Separation From the Ungodly (Neh. 13:1-3).

As soon as they had heard the Word of God, they separated themselves from the mixed multitude.

VI. The House of Worship Was Cleared and Order Restored (Neh. 13:4-14).

No nation or people can be strong which neglects the worship of the true God.

VII. Restoration of the Sabbath (Neh. 13:15-22).

Israel had long violated the Sabbath. To ignore the essential law of the Sabbath is national suicide. Unnumbered evils follow in the wake of the desecration of God's Holy day.

VIII. Restoration of God's Law of Marriage (Neh. 13:23-31).

When those who had intermarried with the heathen were brought face to face with their sin they separated themselves from their ungodly companions.

"I work hard, dance and have gained 3 pounds a week since taking Vinol. My nervousness is almost all gone."—Mrs. F. Lang.

Vinol is a delicious compound of cod liver peptone, iron, etc. Nervous, easily tired, anemic people are surprised how Vinol gives new pep, sound sleep and a BIG appetite. The very first bottle often adds several pounds weight to thin children or adults. Tastes delicious.

Are you in easy reach of your friends?

WHEN friends are planning an evening's bridge, a party for the show, or any one of the dozens of other delightful affairs that make life so pleasant, can they reach you easily and quickly---by telephone?

Without a telephone in your home you'll never know how many impromptu gatherings you are missing. Often planned on the spur of the moment, there is too little time to get in touch with the person who doesn't have a telephone.

You can enjoy all the advantages of a telephone of your own at a surprisingly low cost. For its installation call the company business office, or see any telephone employe.

When you have guests, it shows them a nice courtesy to have their visits recorded in the local paper. And when you or any of your family are away on a visit it's an easy way to let your friends know about it by letting them read it in the newspaper. This paper is anxious to carry as much local, social and personal news as possible every week and it would greatly appreciate it if its friends would phone or write what news they know to the society editor each week. But be sure to sign your name when sending in items through the mail and please get them in to her before Thursday morning. Thanks!

Treasure Hunt.

Miss Kelloray Hill, of Sulligent, Ala., was complimented Wednesday evening by Mrs. Malcolm Lawrence at a "treasure hunt" which led the seachers first to the city park and finally to a tent in the yard of Mrs. Ralph Semmes on Margin Street. Eugene Countiss and Miss Frances Maude Davis proved most adept at working out the various clues and their skill was rewarded when they found the "treasure", a cigar lighter and a bottle of perfume.

When all had concluded their explorations, they gathered back at Mrs. Lawrence's home where sandwiches and coffee were served to the following: Misses Kelloray Hill, Daisy Leigh Roane, Mary Patton Wilkins, Bernice Lawrence, France Maude Davis, Katherine Todd, Elizabeth Thomas and Rebecca Stokes and Messrs. Fred Lickfold, Jeff Cunningham, Albert Galceran, Jack Kendricks, Eugene Countiss, Robert Mullin, Willie Billups, Johnny Lauderdale and Leo Martin.

The Parent Teachers Association had its first meeting of the year last Thursday afternoon in the auditorium of the high school.

The meeting opened with the reading of the Parent Teachers prayer by Mrs. J. N. Provine. A report was made of the summer round up work.

After appointing the committees for the coming year, a social meeting for the teacher and parents was discussed, and Friday evening, Sept. 29, was decided upon as the time to have it, and the high school basement as the place. The month of October was set as the time for the membership drive. It is the wish of the Parent Teachers that every loyal citizen of Grenada will help to make this drive a success. It was voted to invite the district Parent Teachers meeting here on Oct. 9.

Mrs. W. T. Burns, of Memphis, and her daughter, Mrs. Jones, of Oklahoma City, were the guests Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Avent.

Unintentional Suicide

Many people are slowly poisoning themselves just as surely as if they drank poison every morning for breakfast. They are daily absorbing the toxins or poisons created by accumulated waste matter in their constipated digestive systems. Sooner or later disease will conquer their weakened bodies.

If you have dizzy spells, headaches, coated tongue, bad breath, insomnia, no appetite, bilious attacks or pains in the back and limbs, you are probably suffering from self poisoning caused by constipation. OVERLOOKED

The following four items should have appeared in last week's Sentinel but in the rush and hurry of makeup, were inadvertently overlooked:

Mrs. G. M. Lawrence and two small sons and Miss Heard Lawrence returned Tuesday from a ten days' trip to Clarksville, Ark., where they visited Mrs. Lawrence's parents, Mr. and Mrs. M. A. Pinkerton.

Mrs. J. Collins Jones and sweet little daughter, Dick, of Jonestown, visited their sister and aunt, Miss Lida Owens, the first of the week.

Mrs. O. F. Lawrence returned Monday after an extended stay in Jackson where she was the guest of her sisters, Misses Marybel and Louise Crane.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Huggins and young son were expected home last night from Murfreesboro, Tenn. where Mrs. Huggins and the youngster spent the months of July and August visiting relatives. Mr. Huggins, accompanied by Dr. F. S. Hill, drove up last Saturday to return with his wife and baby. Dr. Hill is expected home the last of the week.

We make our bow to the LADIES

The Leader Adds
Complete Ready-to-Wear Service!

Now, ladies here is a new department occupying a separate and distinct part of our store dedicated to your service!

Really, it isn't a radical step. We've been doing business with you in our ladies' hose and shoe department and in our ladies' underwear department for a number of seasons. We feel that you like our merchandise and our way of doing business so we are simply extending our facilities to serve you more completely.

Style is the keynote of our new departments. Most of the merchandise has been chosen by our New York buyer from outstanding fashionable makers. Headed by experienced buyers we will now present the latest fashions and smartest models in ladies' dresses and coats, in costume jewelry and in baby gifts. Although all merchandise has been chosen with a keen eye for quality and style, we hasten to assure you that the usual Leader moderate prices will prevail.

Ladies' Dresses and Coats

We have been fortunate in securing the services of Mrs. J. D. Dyre as head of our new department. She will be assisted by Miss Mary Jeffreys and Mrs. R. C. Trusty, all of whom are well known as judges of styles and values and we know they will take great pains in rendering full satisfaction. If you know Mrs. Dyre, Miss Jeffreys and Mrs. Trusty, come in and welcome them in their new position; if you don't know them come in and make their acquaintance.

Costume Jewelry

In the modern woman's dress, costume jewelry plays a conspicuous part. Ours has been selected by our resident buyer in New York and we can assure you of a real selection of distinctive novelties. A good showing of baby gifts has also been gathered for this department

Ladies' Shoes and Hose

As heretofore, the ladies' shoes and hose will occupy an important position in our store. Style, fit and extraordinary values are three good reasons for coming here.

The Men Not Overlooked!

In all this bustle and flurry about the new departments for ladies, we haven't overlooked the men's needs.

As usual you may expect to find the smartest styles and the most outstanding values here.

New fall suits! New fall overcoats! New fall furnishings! New fall hats! New fall shoes! All selected with the determination to uphold our reputation as the best place in town for men to deal.

SPELLS OF BACKACHE

"I HAVE used Cardui at intervals for sixteen years, when I suffered from weakness, and it always helped me," says Mrs. J. W. Jinright, R. F. D. 2, Troy, Ala. "Mostly I was afflicted with bad spells of backache. At times I felt as if my back would break. I would drag one foot after the other, in a helpless sort of a way, and once I got down in bed. My husband urged me to take Cardui, and I soon found what a fine medicine it really was. "When my second child was little, I was in very bad health. I did not pick up as I should have. I was weak and sickly. I do not believe that I would have come through, but for Cardui." EX-146

Mrs. Tatum and Mrs. Pearson Hostesses

The lawn of Mrs. W. C. McLean's home was the scene last Thursday afternoon of one of the loveliest parties of the summer, when Mrs. Hubert Tatum and Mrs. Overton Pearson entertained at bridge.

Beautiful garden flowers were artistically arranged on the porch, and vases of dainty pink rosebuds were placed on the tables.

Before the games, the gracious hostesses served their guests a most delicious salad and ice course. There were six tables of players to enjoy an interesting session at bridge. Mrs. Ben Graham was the fortunate player who won high score prize, a box of novelty soap. Mrs. Dudley Crawford cut consolation, a pretty bud vase filled with bath salts.

Guests of the delightful affair were: Mrs. S. H. Garner, Mrs. Joe Neely, Mrs. John Huffington, Mrs. W. F. High, Mrs. H. J. Ray, Mrs. Malcolm Lawrence, Mrs. Ernest Penn, Mrs. Joe Rumble, Mrs. J. K. Avent, Mrs. John Pressgrove, Mrs. Ben Graham, Mrs. Robert Townes, Mrs. John Bradley, Mrs. Dudley Crawford, Mrs. Erle Johnston, Mrs. E. R. Proudfit, Mrs. H. T. Pope, Mrs. Knox Pierce, Mrs. Jim Horn, Mrs. Ben Perry, Mrs. Bryan Revell, Mrs. Dewey Harrison, Mrs. Spivey Kent and Miss Daisy Leigh Roane.

Mr. and Mrs. Jake Seigel and children motored to Greenwood Sunday to see Mr. and Mrs. Myer Kline.

Honors Mrs. Burton.

Mrs. Joe Rumble was hostess at a lovely party Tuesday afternoon at 3:30, honoring her sister, Mrs. Richard Burton, of Laurel.

The reception rooms were attractively decorated with various cut flowers.

After an interesting session at bridge, Mrs. W. A. McCool's score was found to be highest. She was awarded a deck of cards for her skill, and Mrs. W. E. Roberts, who held low score, received a bridge score pad. The honoree was presented a bottle of perfume.

Mrs. Rumble served her guests a tempting salad course with refreshing punch.

Those who made up the five tables of players were besides the honoree: Mrs. Dewey Harrison, Mrs. Shade Steele, Mrs. John Dulweber, Mrs. Ben Graham, Mrs. A. J. McCaslin, Mrs. Jim Horn, Mrs. Mollie Townes, Mrs. W. E. Roberts, Mrs. W. C. Campbell, Mrs. W. A. Campbell, Mrs. John Pressgrove, Mrs. J. K. Avent, Mrs. Kenneth Wood, Mrs. Durwood Harrison, Mrs. George Long, Mrs. John Bradley, Mrs. P. T. LaGrone, Mrs. W. A. McCool and Mrs. W. F. High. Mrs. R. L. McLeod and Mrs. R. W. Sharp were tea guests.

Five Tables of Rook.

Miss Martha Oliver delightfully entertained five tables of players at rook Friday morning of last week.

The porch of the Oliver home on Margin Street, where the players were seated, was a veritable bower of loveliness with its decorations of ferns and many summer flowers.

The hostess received her guests in a most attractive sport dress of white and peach flat crepe. Misses Eleanor Lickfold and Grace Cunningham, who were becomingly dressed in blue and green pongee served the guests a delicious salad and ice course.

Those participating in the games were: Misses Grace Cowles Horton, Mary Elsie Campbell, Frances Honeycutt, Lorine Kimzey, Christine Geeslin, Faye Easterling, Dorothy Slocum, Rachel Todd, Sarah Jane Tatum, Lucile Stevens, Grace and Ruth Kirk, Eloise and Elizabeth Wilkins, Mary Phelan Brown, Catherine and Mary Ross, Myrtle Cunningham and Mary and Billie Finney.

Mrs. Kent Has Club.

The Friday bridge club met last week with Mrs. Spivey Kent.

Roses, snapdragons and dahlias were used in decorating.

After the games, Mrs. W. F. High was found to have highest score and she was presented a deck of cards.

Mrs. T. J. Brown assisted her daughter in serving her guests a salad and ice course.

Besides the club members Mrs. Joe Neely, Mrs. Malcolm Lawrence and Mrs. W. F. High were present.

THE STORY

CHAPTER I—In the town of Urbino, Italy, when it was under the control of Cesare Borgia, famous military commander as well as great statesman, a certain Messer Corvinus Trismegistus, arrant rogue, is flourishing as a fortune teller, caster of spells, and dispenser of poisons to those who can afford to pay for them. To him comes in great secrecy the Lady Bianca de Fioravanti, beautiful daughter of the rich and powerful lord of the Castle of San Leo, which is holding out against the power of even Cesare Borgia. In the act of entering, the girl is astounded by the appearance of what she takes for an apparition, but who turns out to be human as herself, and enters with her. Bianca asks the sorcerer for an elixir which will compel love and mentions the name of the man she desires to conquer, Lorenzo Castrocaro, condottiero serving under Cesare Borgia. Corvinus, for a large sum of money, gives her a potion, with directions, and the girl departs. When she leaves, the "apparition" appears before Corvinus. He is the much dreaded Cesare himself. Borgia learns from Corvinus that he has a substance which he declares will restore the dead to life. He then accuses the man of spreading the report that the Sultan Djem had been destroyed by the Holy Father through a subtle poison which Corvinus had supplied. Corvinus denies it, but admits he has a deadly poison which will lie dormant in the body for 30 days and at the end of that time result in the death of the person to whom it has been administered. Cesare forces him to drink it, and restore himself to life. The sorcerer secures an emetic and saves himself.

CHAPTER II—At a council, at which Castrocaro is present, the duke is assured by his officers that the castle of San Leo is practically impregnable and can only be starved out. This will take more time than Cesare is willing to devote to the task. Castrocaro tells the duke he has frequently scaled the mountain on which the castle is situated. With a subtle purpose, and believing Castrocaro is not so insensible to Bianca's beauty as the girl supposes, he sends him to her with a message that her father is sick in San Leo. The young officer returns from the visit asking the duke to allow Bianca to visit her father. Borgia refuses, but secretly gives orders that she is to be allowed permission to pass through the besieging lines if she makes the attempt. He then accepts Castrocaro's aid and makes Castrocaro an offer of the governorship of the place if through his efforts it is taken. Of course, a misstep or capture is certain death, but the young man accepts the offer, lured as much by the spirit of adventure as by the rich reward offered by Borgia if he should succeed.

CHAPTER III—Castrocaro, after superhuman efforts, succeeds in entering the place undiscovered, his plan being to open the gates to a large party of Borgia's soldiers, who will be hidden outside. On the verge of success he is captured. His story that he is the bearer of a message from the lord of San Leo, who, of course, is not in the castle, is too absurd to believe, and he is sentenced to death by the castellan, Tolentino, to be tossed back by "the road he had come." Castrocaro is placed in the guardhouse and given the night to prepare himself for death. He sees no possibility of escaping the dreadful penalty, and resolves to summon all his fortitude to meet the horrible death awaiting him.

Thereafter for a while the going was easier. A natural path, some three feet wide, wound upwards along the precipice's face. At the end of this he was confronted by another gap, to be surmounted only by a leap.

Fearing lest his sword should trip him, he unbuckled his belt, and cast the weapon from him. He did so with regret, but constrained to it by the reflection that if he kept it he might never live to need it. Then he took a deep breath, seized his courage in both hands, and jumped across the black unfathomable void at a stunted tree that thrust out from that sheer wall. With arms and legs he clutched like an ape at the frail plant, and had its hold given way under his weight, there would have been an end of him forthwith. It held, however, and clinging to it, he groped for foothold, found it, and went on. This brought him to a narrow fissure in the cliff. Up this fissure he swarmed, supported by just the pressure of knees and forearms against the rock, and only at times finding a projection affording a safer grip for one or the other.

Up, straight up, he went for nearly twenty feet, until at last he reached the fissure's summit; one of its walls permitted him to get astride it, and there he rested, bathed in sweat and winded by the stupendous exertions he had put forth. Seated thus, his breast close against the cliff, he looked sideways and down into the awful depths below him. He shuddered, and clung with his bruised hands to the rock, and it was some time before he could proceed upon the second half of his ascent, for by now he knew that he was a good midway.

At last he resumed his climb, and by similar means, and surmounting similar and constant perils, he pushed on and ever upwards.

One narrow escape he had. As he clung with both hands to that awful wall at a place where the foothold was but a few inches wide, a great brown body, with a shrieking whirr, dashed out of a crevice just above his head, and went cawing and circling in the void beyond. So startled was he that he almost loosed his hold, and a cold sweat broke out upon his roughened skin as he recovered and knew the thing for what it was. And later, when, an hour or so before midnight, the moon went down and left him in utter darkness, fear at last assailed his stout spirit, and for a time he did not dare to move. Presently, however, as he grew accustomed to the gloom, his eyes were able to pierce it to an extent that restored his courage. The night, after all, was clear and starlit, and at close quarters objects were just visible; yet immense care was necessary lest he should now commit the irreparable error of mistaking substance for shadow, or should misjudge his distances, as was so easy.

At long length, towards midnight, utterly spent, with bleeding hands and rent garments, he found himself on the roomy platform at the very foot of the castle's southern wall; and not for all the wealth of the world would he have consented to return by the way he had so miraculously ascended—for miraculous did he now account it that he should have reached his goal in safety. He flung himself down, full length, there at the foot of the wall to rest awhile before attempting the escalade. And what time he rested, he whispered a prayer of thankfulness for his preservation so far, for a devout soul was this Messer Lorenzo.

He looked up at the twinkling stars, out at the distant sheen of the Adriatic, down at the clustering hamlets in the plain, so far below him, from which so painfully he had climbed. Immediately above his head he could hear the steady measured tread of the sentry, approaching, passing, and receding again, as the man patrolled the embattled parapet. Thrice did the fellow pass that way before Castrocaro stirred; and when at length he rose, as the steps were fading in the distance for the third time, he felt a certain pity for the soldied whose spirit he must inevitably liberate from its earthly prison-house that night.

He uncoiled the rope from his body, stood back, and swung the grappling-hook a moment, taking aim, then hurled it upwards. It soared above the wall, and fell beyond, between two merlons, then thudded softly against the masonry, the straw in which he had the foresight to swathe it muffling the sound of the metal.

He pulled gently at the rope, hoping that the hooks would fasten upon some projection in the stone or lodge within some crevice. But neither happened. The hooks came to the summit of the wall, and toppled back, falling at his feet. Again he repeated the operation, with a like result; but at the third attempt the hooks took hold. He swung his entire weight upon the rope to test the grip, and found that it held firmly.

But now the sentry's return warned him that the moment was unpropitious. So he waited, intently listening, crouching at the wall's foot, until the man had passed, and his footsteps were once more receding in the distance.

Then he began the ascent in sailor fashion, hauling himself up hand over hand, his feet against the masonry to lighten the labor of his arms. Thus he came swiftly to the top of the wall, and knelt there, between two merlons, peering down into the black courtyard. All was silent. Save for the tramp of the sentry, who was now turning the northwestern angle of the ramparts, as Messer Lorenzo rightly judged, no sound disturbed the stillness of the place.

He loosed the hooks from the crevice in which they had fastened. He flung them wide, the rope with them, and sent them hurtling over the precipice, that there might be no evidence of the manner of his coming. Then he dropped softly down upon the parapet, exulting to realize that his journey was accomplished, and that he was within the fortress.

His mission was all but ended. The rest was easy. Within a few moments the Borgia troops would be pouring into San Leo, and the soldiers of the garrison, surprised in their beds, would make a very ready surrender. It no longer appeared even necessary to Messer Lorenzo to butcher that single sentry. If he but wisely chose his moment for the unbarring of the gates, the whole thing might be done without the man's suspicions being aroused until it was too late. Indeed, it was the safer course; for, after all, if he came to grapple with the soldier, there was always the chance that the fellow might cry out and give the alarm before Castrocaro could dispatch him.

Resolved thus upon that score, he moved forward swiftly, yet very cautiously, and gained a flight of stone steps that wound down into the inner ballie. This he descended, and so reached the quadrangle. Round this vast square he moved, keeping well within the shadows, until he came to the gateway opening upon a passage that ran past the guard-room on one side and the chapel on the other, into the outer ballie of the fortress.

In this gateway he crouched, and waited until the sentry, who was coming round again, should have passed once more to the castle's northern side. No window overlooking the courtyard showed a single light; the place was wrapped in slumber.

Messer Lorenzo waited calmly, his pulse quite regular. Should the door be locked, then he must return, deal with the sentry, and make his way to the main gates by the battlements. But it was unlikely that such would be the case.

High up, immediately before him upon the ramparts, he saw the sentry, passing slowly, pike on shoulder, a black shadow dimly outlined against the blue-black, star-flecked dome of sky. He watched him as he passed on and round, all unsuspicious, and so vanished once more. Then, very softly, Messer Lorenzo tried the latch of that big door. It yielded silently to his pressure and a black tunnel gaped before him. He entered it, and very softly closed the door again on the inside. Then he paused, reflecting that were he to go straight forward and pass out into the northern court he must risk detection by the sentry, who was now on the northern battlements. Therefore he must wait until the fellow should come round again.

Interminable seemed his wait this time, and once he fancied that he heard a man's voice coming from the guard-room on his right. The sound momentarily quickened his pulses that had been steady hitherto. But hearing no more, he concluded that his senses, strained by so much dodging, waiting, and listening, had deceived him.

At last he caught the sound of the sentry's step approaching again along the parapet. Satisfied that he had waited long enough he made shift to grope his way through the black darkness of that passage. And then, even as he turned, his heart almost stood still. Upon the chapel door, at the height of some three feet, there was a tiny oval splash of light, along the ground at the same spot a yellow gleam long and narrow as a sword-blade. Instantly he understood. The guard-room, whose windows looked upon the northern court, was still tenanted, and what he beheld was the light that shone through the keyhole and under the door.

A moment he paused, considering. Then he perceived that, having come so far, he must go on. To retreat and reopen the door would be fraught with the greater risk, whilst to linger in the passage would be but to increase the already imminent danger of discovery. His only chance of winning through lay in going forward at once, taking care to make no sound that should reach those within. Thus, no doubt, all would be well. With extremest caution, then, he stepped forward on tip-toe, his hands upon the wall on the chapel side to guide and steady him.

Not more than three or four steps had he taken when, quite suddenly, an oath rang out in a deep male voice, followed by the laughter of several men. With that there was a scraping of chairs, and heavy steps came tramping toward the door.

With this door Messer Lorenzo was now level, and, being startled, he made his one mistake. Had he taken the risk of speeding forward swiftly, he might even now have won safely to the outer ballie. But he hung there hesitating, again considering retreat even, his every sinew taut. And that pause was his ruin. In a moment he realized it, saw that he was trapped, that retreat was now utterly hopeless, and that to go forward was no better. Therefore, with set teeth and angry misery in his soul to reflect that he had won so far and at such peril only to fail upon the very threshold of success, he stood at bay, to meet what he no longer could avoid.

The door was pulled open from within, and a flood of light poured out into that black place, revealing Messer Lorenzo, white of face, with staring eyes, one hand instinctively upon his poniard hilt, poised there as if for a spring.

Thus did the foremost of the five men who issued behold him, and at sight of him all checked abruptly, staring. This foremost one, a big, heavily built fellow all clad in leather, black-browed and bearded, seemed in some slight measure the superior of those other four. All five were very obviously soldiers.

He fell back a step in sheer amazement, startled even by the sight of Messer Lorenzo. Then, recovering, he set his arms akimbo, planted wide his feet, and looked our gentleman over with an eye of deepest interest. "Now who the devil may you be?" he demanded.

Messer Lorenzo's wits were ever very ready, and in that moment he had a flash of inspiration. He stepped forward easily in answer to that challenge, and so came more fully into the light.

"I am glad to see there is someone alive and awake in San Leo," he said; and he seemed to sneer, as one who had the right to utter a reproof.

On the faces of those five men amazement grew and spread. Looking beyond them into the room, which was lighted by torches set in iron sconces in the walls, Messer Lorenzo beheld the explanation of the silence they had kept. There was a table on which remained spread a pack of greasy cards. They had been at play.

"Body of G—d," he went on, "you keep a fine watch here! The Borgia soldiery may be at your very gates. I myself can effect an entrance, and no man to hinder or challenge me, or so much as give the alarm! By the Host! were you men of mine, I should find work for you in the kitchen, and hope that you'd give a better account of yourselves as scullions than you do as soldiers."

"Now, who the devil may you be, I say?" again demanded the black-browed warrior, scowling more truculently than before.

"And how the devil come you here?" cried another, a slender, loose-lipped fellow, with a wart on his nose, who pushed forward to survey the intruder at closer quarters.

Castrocaro on the instant became very haughty.

"Take me to your captain—to Messer Tolentino," he demanded. "He shall learn what manner of watch you keep. You dogs, the place might be burnt about your ears while you sit there cheating one another at cards, and set a fellow who appears to be both deaf and blind to pace your walls."

The note of cool authority in his voice produced its effect. They were entirely duped by it. That a man should so address them whose right to do so was not entirely beyond question seemed to them—as it might indeed to any—altogether incredible.

"Messer Tolentino is abed," said the big fellow in a surly voice.

They did not like the laugh with which Messer Castrocaro received that information. It had an unpleasant ring.

"I nothing doubt it from the manner of your watch," he sneered. "Well, then, up and rouse him for me!"

"But who is he, after all, Bernardo?" insisted the loose-lipped stripling of their leader; and the others grunted their approval of a question that at least possessed the virtue of being timely.

"Aye," quoth black-browed Bernardo. "You have not told us who you are?" His tone lay between truculence and sulky deference.

"I am an envoy from the Lord Guidobaldo, your duke," was the ready and unfaltering answer; and the young condottiero wondered in his heart whither all this would lead him, and what chance of saving himself might offer yet.

Their deference was obviously increased, as was their interest in him.

"But how came you in?" insisted the one who already had posed that question.

Messer Lorenzo waved the question and questioner impatiently aside.

"What matters that?" quoth he. "Enough that I am here. Are we to trifle away the night in silly questions? Have I not told you that the Borgia troops may at this moment be at your very gates?"

"By Bacchus, they may stay there," laughed another. "The gates of San Leo are strong enough, my master; and should the Borgia rabble venture to knock, we shall know how to answer them."

HERE'S SOMETHING NEW

A CHRYSLER DEVELOPMENT THAT REVOLUTIONIZES PERFORMANCE

SOMETHING startling has happened. Three sensational new Chryslers are abroad in the land. In the thick of city traffic—on the streets and boulevards—along the highways and byways—in the mountains—on the plains—their unprecedented performance is changing every notion of what a motor car can be expected to do.

The new Chryslers introduce such epochal new developments as:
MULTI-RANGE GEAR SHIFT
DOWN-DRAFT CARBURETION
SYNCHRONIZED POWER
PARAFLEX SPRINGS
ARCHITONIC BODIES
—and a host of other features that put them farther ahead of all other present-day automobiles than the first Chrysler was ahead of the cars of five years ago.

Come to the salesroom. Examine these new Chryslers at your leisure. Then take one out; drive it; and you'll experience the supreme sensation of outclassing other cars on any road, in any test, and under all conditions.

The Hill Farm Is All Right, But---

If You are Going to Grow Cotton The Delta is The Place to Grow it—We Have a Large Acreage of these Rich Delta Lands which We are Offering on Terms so Easy That They Will Carry Themselves—Do You Know of Anyone Who is Satisfied?—We Do Not—All are Wanting More and Always Reaching Out—Why Not Reach For Something Worth While—A Delta Farm?

The Hill Farmer should have a Delta farm. The Delta Farmer should have a larger farm.

READ OUR OFFER AND THE FOLLOWING FACTS:

Goverment Flood Control — There is not a town or city on or near the banks of the Mississippi River or its tributaries, within the zones affected by our canalizing program, which will not double and quadruple in economic importance, if not in local population and valuation within the next five years—Carey Arnett, president Inter-Southern Life, Louisville, Ky.

The Offer — Delta Cut-Over Lands on easy payments. and which you can own and cultivate from your present Hill homes. That is because of the location of the property and its easy accessibility by excellent roads.

Accessibility — If your Hill farm lies anywhere between Batesville and Grenada, you can step in your car and be on the grounds of this fine, rich Delta acreage in anywhere between 30 minutes and 1 hour and 15 minutes.

The Location and Connecting Highways — The acreage we are offering is traversed on the East side by the fine graded and graveled Highway which runs south from Charleston to the Grenada County line, known as the Valley Road.

It is traversed on the West by the excellent Charleston-Philipp Highway. The northern section of the property is traversed by the Highway from Tippo to Grenada.

In addition to these graveled highways, there are two graded dirt roads which traverse property East to West.

Delta Schools — Delta schools of this section are numerous and excellent. The lands offered in this advertisement lie close to fine Consolidated Schools. Delta churches are likewise numerous and good.

School Opening

The opening of the high school last Monday morning furnished an intellectual thrill for our group. The inadequate auditorium was uncomfortably full of children, to say nothing of the parents and visitors who attended. If all the children of the city of school age had been there, there would not have been standing room. Something should be done to relieve this condition. Prof. Rogers and his faculty were present with a freshness for work, which was manifest by appearance and declaration. Prof. Rogers gave a clear and concise lecture to the pupils and parents which covered every requirement of a first class school. Grenada may well boast of the progress and attainments the school is making from year to year. Rev. Wm. Barnes, Rev. A. S. Blake and Mrs. O'Neal were introduced and added their endorsement to the plans outlined by the principal. The ladies who have been secured for the school are some of the best to be found for their specific work. Mrs. S. W. Rogers, Mrs. Willie Wilson, Mrs. S. E. Walthal, Misses Ada McLean, Willie F. Jones, A. M. Taylor, I. E. Patterson, Clyde Golden, M. L. Cain. These ladies were introduced to the pupils and expressed an avowed purpose to assist the principal in carrying out his plans. Thus begins a very promising session.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Williams and brother, of South Bend, Indiana, motored through the country to Goodman, Miss. to visit their parents who live there. They took the opportunity to stop over in Grenada to also see their brother, Thomas Whitten.

Mr. A. H. Henderson had as visitors, two of his sons, O. T., one of the teachers of Alcorn College, and Dennis, an attorney of Cleveland, Ohio. Their stay was short because of business engagements.

Miss Myrtle Ankton, of Little Rock, is visiting her father, Rev. G. L. Ankton, who lives out east in this county. This is Miss Ankton's second year at the United Friends Hospital where she is taking nurse training. She is doing fine work and will soon finish as a trained nurse.

Mrs. I. E. Summerfield, of Union City, Tenn., daughter of J. H. and Mrs. Emma Phillips, ran in Sunday to visit her parents. Before returning to Union City she will, with her mother, visit an aunt who lives at Canton, Miss. She is glad to be home for a while to note the improved appearance of her old home.

The parent teachers association organized last year did a splendid service to the school and community at large. Much of the efficiency and equipment of the playground at the school is the result of their work. The parents of the community who have not identified themselves with this organization should do so at once. Your assistance is needed. Many needs can be met through an active parent teachers association.

CARD OF THANKS

We are deeply grateful to those who have been so sympathetic following the great sorrow that has been visited upon our home in the loss of our little girl. We appreciate the efforts of the doctors who valiantly fought to save her life and the ministrations of the many who were so attentive to her during her illness.

We hope and pray that the Divine Father will reward each of you for your goodness to us and to our little Emily.

Sincerely,
Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Litten

WEEVIL INJURES COTTON; TEXAS DROUTH DAMAGING

Some of the reports of correspondents, on which The Commercial Appeal's cotton crop estimates —14,756,000 bales as of Sept. 1, was based are published herewith.

These reports, with few exceptions, indicate heavy deterioration during August, due to prolonged drouth in Texas and Oklahoma and to unfavorable weather conditions and weevil damage in other sections of the cotton belt.

Drouth prevailed over most of Texas through June, July and August and was not broken until after the date of the report. Many correspondents expressed the opinion that the crop had suffered beyond any possibility of being benefited should rains occur, some were of opinion that rains would injure open cotton more than they would benefit the crop otherwise.

The southern half of the belt suffered severely from weevil depredations, light to moderate weevil damage was reported as far northward as northern portions of Georgia, Alabama and Mississippi, and southern portions of Arkansas, weevil damage was light to moderate, over most of the Carolinas, including portions of the Piedmont section of South Carolina.

Except in northern parts of the belt, including the Carolinas, the crop appears to have quit early in August.

Weather conditions during August, while not conducive to growth and new fruitage were highly favorable for harvesting. Cotton opened rapidly, much of it prematurely and picking and ginning made excellent progress.—Commercial Appeal, Sept. 9.

SOUTHERN DAIRY SHOW RIVALS NATIONAL SHOW IN INTEREST

Memphis was the capital of the dairy world for eight days in 1927 and again in 1928 when the National Dairy Show was held in connection with the annual Tri-State Fair. Again for the third successive year Memphis is sponsoring a great dairy show. This year the Southern Dairy Show will be held during the Mid South Fair, Sept. 28-Oct. 5.

The Southern Dairy Show will lack none of the spectacular features of the two preceding events. In some respects it will surpass even the National Show. The 4-H Calf Club Show will be the greatest event of the kind held in the United States in 1929.

The Calf Club Show is one of many features in which the Southern Dairy Show will rival the National. The finest dairy herds from all over the South will be exhibited at Memphis. Owners of prize dairy herds from other sections, shown during the National Dairy Show in 1927 and 1928 will again enter their best herds in the Southern before sending them to St. Louis to be exhibited in the National.

Growth of dairying in the South and the interest aroused by the two visits of the National Dairy Show to Memphis will be reflected in the success of the Southern event.

Awards offered for dairy cattle include $2,025 for Jerseys; $1,500 for Guernseys; $1,550 for Holsteins; and $1,060 for Ayrshires. Premiums amounting to $3,840 will be awarded prize winning entries in the 4-H Dairy Calf Club Show.

An interesting feature of the Southern Dairy Show is the Dairy Products Section, with competition limited to exhibts from the Southern States. In this section there will be exhibits from Southern butter, cheese and milk plants and Southern dairymen.

The annual Southern Students Dairy Cattle Judging Contest will be held Monday, Sept. 30, with the same rules in effect as are used in the contest held by the National Dairy Show.

Gordon Dement is superintendent of the Dairy Cattle Section. John A. Lee of Springfield, Ohio, will judge the Jerseys; Charles L. Hill of Rosendale, Wis., will judge the Guernseys; and Fordyce Ely of Lexington, Ky., will judge the Holsteins and Ayrshires.

Fair Will Show Poultry and Pigeons

The annual Poultry and Pigeon Show, held in Memphis in connection with the Mid-South Fair, Sept. 28-Oct. 5, are events national in scope and importance. The value of the cash awards in regular classes, the many displays, championship and other special awards, the quality and number of the entries, and the national reputation of the judges, place the two shows on the highest possible plane.

This year will find both shows ready to pass even the high mark set in former years. Entries close Saturday, Sept. 21.

The Poultry Show is under the direction of the show committee of the Tri-State Poultry Association. Competition this year is limited to the most popular breeds and varieties. A departure from the custom is the substitution of trio exhibits for the pen exhibits formerly displayed.

In connection with the Pigeon Show a number of district and national meets will be held in Memphis. An interesting feature will be a series of lectures and demonstrations by Frank H. Hollman, editor of the American Pigeon Journal.

Cash Miller on Happiness

Most people chase happiness like it was somebody that tried to lift your watch, observed Cash Miller, cigar store philosopher. My dope is it always comes to you unexpected like jury duty or a fall on the ice. A lotta times it comes with false whiskers and a disguise which you don't recognize till it's too late.—Thrift Magazine.

LEGISLATIVE HAPPENINGS AND DEADLOCK DISCUSSED BY REPRESENTATIVE PROVINE

to the legislature just what sort of a road law he thought should be passed. But that has been his habit. He suggests that something should be done but hides out himself. He never seems to know how he wants it done or how it should be done, but when a bill to meet situations presented by him is passed, he vetoes it. He never did recommend to the regular or to the first extraordinary session the kind of a revenue raising law he favored, but when the legislature presented measures that would raise the necessary revenue, he vetoed them. It is recalled that he vetoed a bill to tax cigars and cigarettes. It is authoritatively stated now that he favors a general sales tax law, a law that would place a tax on every article and every item one would buy.

But back to highway legislation. Gov. Bilbo started out at the first of his administration wanting $82,000,000 in road bonds. Then a bill supposedly representing his ideas was framed and passed in the senate carrying a bond issue of $60,000,000. That bill was killed in the house. We thought it too much bonds and that there were not enough restrictions.

"The Governor asked for authority to substitute paid guards for the present guards on the convict farms which was estimated would have cost the state about $150,000 and provided jobs for more of the Governor's pets.

"He asked in the last hours of the session that his contingent fund be increased $25,000. which he would use in apprehending escaped convicts. Another way to make some soft jobs. The senate tacked the $25,000. onto the appropriation providing for paying the members of the legislature for the last four days of the session; the house rejected the amendment by a vote about 80 to 30. The senate through its conference committee refused to take off the $25,000. and thus the bill died and the members were compelled to wait for balance of their pay. Gov. Vardaman, Gov. Noel and Gov. Brewer got a contingent fund of only $5,000, I am reliably informed. The contingent fund, as most people know, provides for trips for the Governor and for rewards for convicts and other unforeseen things. Gov. Bilbo has been getting the biggest contingent fund ever provided in the state.

"The Governor rendered the state a good service by starting an investigation of the office of the attorney general and of the official acts of the former chairman of the Tax Commission, Cecil Inman. The attorney general was impeached; Inman was out of office and can be reached only through the courts. It is noted that both these men are being sued in the courts for alleged malfeasance in office.

"I note that Ex-Gov. Murphree challenges the statement that there was any shortage of revenue in the preceding state administration. Bilbo says the shortage was about two million dollars but Hon. Joe George, who is able and honest to the core and one of the staunch supporters of the administrations of Whitfield and Murphree, stated on the floor of the house that the shortage was $600,000. This was evidently in addition to what Mr. Knox and Mr. Inman in a secret caucus bluffed out of the railroads which was about $700,000 itself.

"The whole business of both the present and the preceding administrations shows as I see it, that the public has had a raw deal. The people should open their eyes and give attention to what is going on in Jackson and among their state officials.

"Gov. Bilbo spoiled his political nest in trying to get control of every board of trustees in the state and all commissions and in playing the big boss generally. It is an open secret that he just won't listen to the advice of some of his closest friends.

"The responsibility is on the Governor for no highway law. He may wriggle and twist but the record speaks for itself and he cannot get around it.

"Legislation was new to me. I tried to learn. I took counsel with the ablest and most experienced legislators and I tried at all times to vote conscientiously and as wisely as I knew how on legislation. My worthy colleague, Hon. E. G. McCormick, and I sat together and our ideas almost always ran together. He made a faithful member.

"The Governor has lost his grip on the senate. He just demanded too much. He wanted, it seems, subserviency. I believe that when the legislature meets at the regular January 1930 session, there will be harmony between the two bodies and that we shall see some legislation, if that be necessary, passed over the Governor's veto. Possibly Gov. Bilbo will not be so peppy by that time and that he will learn something about the temper of the people ere then.

"I think a vast majority of the members or associates in the house were conscientious at all times. We had many very able men in the house. Factional lines would break out occasionally but these spasms lasted but a few moments and the very best of brotherly feeling existed among and between all the members.

"I want to thank those here at home who demanded my services always to good ends. I tried to represent what I thought was the will of our people and was always more than glad when some one from home presented a matter to me. I am the special debtor to all these and am doubly the debtor to the good people of the entire county."

Adults Contract Children's Diseases

Adults can, and do, contract many children's diseases. And, usually, they suffer from them much more than children do. For instance, many adults contract worms, an ailment usually associated with children. Sometimes they suffer intensely and take expensive medical treatments, without realizing that worms are the cause of their troubles. Yet, the symptoms are the same as in children, loss of appetite and weight, grinding the teeth and restless sleep, itching of the nose and anus, and abdominal pains. And, the same medicine that surely and harmlessly expels round and pin worms from children will do the same for adults—White's Cream Vermifuge, which you can get at CORNER DRUG STORE.

BUREAU IN GOOD SHAPE

Jackson, Miss., Sept. 7.—The executive committee of the Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation composed of C. L. Neill, H. N. Winans, Canton; W. G. Evans, Columbus; D. E. Wilson, Hernando; and G. H. Alford, Magnolia, Thursday issued the following statement:

"Many press notices of the past few days have confused the affairs of the Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation with those of the Mississippi Farm Bureau Cotton Association.

"The Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation is a separate organization and its financial affairs are in no way involved with the problems of the Cotton Association.

"The Mississippi Farm Bureau Federation was organized in 1921 and a financial statement submitted to the Executive Committee at its meeting September 3, indicates that the Federation is in better financial condition today than at any time since its organization.

"The Farm Bureau services include the cooperative purchasing of feeds, seeds. fertilizers, and other farm supplies together with the cooperative marketing of miscellaneous farm crops.

"These services are handled through the local county farm bureaus throughout the state and the central Federation office Jackson. Contracts involving millions of dollars are made annua through the Federation on wh large savings are effected for farmers. The office is busy taki care of bookings and giving s vice as usual; county farm burea are active, and indications that this will be the most su cessful year the federation h ever had."

To Whom it May Concern:

I am glad to hereby render testimony as to curative value of Robinson Spring Water.

Nineteen years ago my mother was afflicted with a long standing case of Diabetes. She was then about fifty six years old, had lost about thirty pounds in weight and had spent many sleepless nights. After drinking a gallon of Robinson Spring Water every day for six months she regained her health and has remained cured. She is now seventy-five years old, lively and healthy. I am, very Respectfully
